A Mind-Body-Spirit Approach to Nurturing Resilience (3 CE Hours)

Presented By: Kevin Harrington, PhD

Mental health issues have been increasing at an alarming rate in our country and around the world. One of the key factors for this epidemic is the erosion of natural born resilience. Significant amounts of neuroscience research supports Mind-Body-Heart approaches in developing resiliency skills. This half-day program will provide attendees with an overview of a resiliency model including the practices and the neuroscience underpinnings of the model. Mind-Body skills will be presented through a didactic and experiential format that the participants can integrate into their personal and professional life.

Your Presenter:

Kevin Harrington, PhD, is a licensed psychologist currently working in private practice in Minnesota. Dr. Harrington's practice involves providing resilience training to healthcare providers, schools and families. He has been teaching educators, healthcare providers and families mind-body skills nationally and internationally for more than 25 years.

Film Screening & Discussion (2 CE Hours)

After a pregnant woman is murdered by her boyfriend, the filmmaker learns that homicide is the leading cause of death during pregnancy and seeks to discover the characteristics of potentially homicidal relationships. Conversations with experts and survivors of intimate partner homicide attempts provide a picture of the anatomy of abusive relationships, while law enforcement and the people who loved Jenn alert us to the signs that she missed. Ultimately, it is the voices of survivors who help us to find Jenn's voice, leaving the viewer with a message that is hard to forget. Take advantage of this opportunity to learn more about an important issue as well as earn 2 CE Hours. Popcorn will be served!
